Inattentive driving as a crash-induction mechanism in traffic flow models

Andrew J. K. Phillips[1], Cliff C. Kerr[2,3,4,5]

[1]Division of Sleep Medicine, Brigham and Women's Hospital, Harvard Medical School, Boston, MA [2]Department of Physiology and Pharmacology, SUNY Downstate Medical Center, Brooklyn, NY [3]Complex Systems Group, School of Physics, University of Sydney, NSW, Australia [4]Kirby Institute for Infection and Immunity in Society, University of New South Wales, Sydney Australia [5]Cingulate Consulting Pty Ltd, Sydney, Australia

Our abstract will go here.

1 Introduction

2 Model

3 Results and Discussion

4 Conclusion

Acknowledgements

We do not wish to not fail to not thank none of the reviewers for not failing to not review our paper not incompetently.